Where tempting decanters stand boldly in sight, To create or renew a depraved appetite; Or behind the false skreen for concealment design'd, Where young men are ruin'd in body and mind.

O come then my friends-make haste-come away-Sign the tee-total pledge, nor longer delay , Tis virtue invites you and offers a boon, To win you away from the tempting saloon.

O! fly from the wine cup while yet it is red, Nor julap, nor cordial, nor beer, take instead; Nor brandy, nor gin, nor rum, touch or taste, But fly from them all-linger not but make haste.

From saloon to hotel, from hotel to shebeen, Too many, alas! there may often be seen, Who begin with champaign and their senses benumb, But end their career in cider and rum.

Thus many, too many, whose prospects were bright, Are lost and undone while in drink they delight; Empoverish'd, deserted, degraded, and vile, A grief to their friends, to the tempter a spoil.

Then judge him a fee to yourself and to truth, Who temptingly places the cup to your mouth; Who robs you of character, money and brain, To linger in sickness and sorrow and pain.

O come then, my friends, ere too late, from the place; Come back to your friends who still wait your embrace; In temperance, virtue, and duty you'll find Good health for the body and peace for the mind.

> THE SHOEMAKER. BY MISS. H. F. GOULD.

Act well your part, there all the honor lies.' The shoemaker sat amid wax and leather, With lap-stone over his knee, Where, snug in his shop, he defied all weather, Drawing his quarters and sole together; A happy old man was he.

This happy old man was so wise and knowing, The worth of time he knew, He bristled his ends and he kept them going, And felt to each moment a stitch was owing, Until he got round the shoe.

Of every deed that his wax was sealing, The closing was firm and fast. The prick of his awl never caused a feeling Of pain to the toe; and his skill in heeling Was perfect, and true to the last.

Whenever you gave him a foot to measure, With gentle and skilful hand, He took its proportions with looks of pleasure As if you were giving the costlicst treasure, Or dubbing him lord of the land.

And many a one did he save from getting A fever, or cold, or cough ; For many a foot did he save from wetting, When, whether in water or snow 'twas setting, His shoeing would keep them off.

When he had done with his making and mending, With hope and a peaceful breast, Resigning his awl, and his thread was ending, He passed from his bench, to the grave descending, As high as a king to rest.

Here the first object of interest is the Cathedral, the tower of which was in sight a long time ere we reached the feet. From this dizzy height we saw the pigmy houses below and the storks wheeling around the nests of their young. A sudden shower forced us to descend, not wishing to be exposed in this pen work cage, as it seemed, to the drenching rain; the lightnings darting above and below, while the winds whistled in gusts with the revels they kept up. It was commenced in the tenth century and finished in the fifteenth, with the exception of one tower, which yet is wanting. In the other, two families reside, one at the base and another about half way up, where the names of ascenders are recorded. In the cellar is a representation of the Garden of Olives. Our guide lit his candle from a bunch of matches which lay on the back of Peter, and then the whole groupe became slowly visible. In the foreground is the Savior, with hands clasped book in hand, also asleep. A party of eight persons is formed of one piece of stone. In front is Judas with his bag clenched, backed by seven soldiers with cords and weapons. The interior of the building with its arched nave, and surrounding chapels, its echoing organs, and magnificent paintings and painted windows, and above all, the imposing rites I witnessed, baffle description. At the church of St. Thomas is a monument more pleasing than any I have seen. It was erected to the memory of Marshal Saxe, and represents the Gen-It was with difficulty that Mrs. North preserved eral descending with a calm step to the Sarcophawhile, with the other, he beckons to his victim; France as a beautiful female figure, is pressing between them, vainly endeavoring to shield her favorite; on one side the French colors triumphant, on the other, partially recovered from the shock, were once more the English, Holland and Austrian reversed; the whole in marble of various colors; the Sarcophagus of the purest green. At Cologne, the Cathedral is, if possible, more interesting than that at Strasburg, having been six hundred years in building, and now remaining in a state about equally removed from commencement, completion and decay. So far as finished, it is the best specimen of gothic architecture existing. The towers, to be five hundred, are now about two hundred feet high. The crane for raising the stone is there, but has not been used for fifty years. Some time since it was taken down, but a violent thunder shower urising the next day, so alarmed the inhabitants, hinking that the Deity was offended, that it was immediately replaced in order to make him think they intended to re-commence the work: thus su-

THE SLANDERER.

Good name, in man, and woman, Is the immediate iewel of their souls; Who steals my purse, steals trash; 'tis something, nothing; 'Twas mine, 'tis his and has been slave to thousands; But he that filches from me my good name, Robs me of that which not enriches him, And makes me poor indeed .- Skakspeare.

Of all vile wretches that infest The land on which we tread, There's none we should so much detest, And so abhor and dread, As him who meanly brings disgrace On innocence, by slanders base.

He who takes the purse may plead Necessity's demand; Perhaps a wife and children need Assistance at his hand; Despair may prompt him to supply By guilt, what honest means deny.

Not so with him who basely tries The virtuous to defame, For there is nought that justifies A deed so rank with shame ;-To guilt so foul, so dark of hue, Not even charity is due.

HEAVEN This wo:ld's Nor " all a fleeting show, For man's illusion given : He that hath soothed a widow's wo, Or wiped an orphan's tear, doth know There's something HERE of Heaven.

And he that walks life's thorny way With feelings calm and even, Whose path is lit, from day to day, By virtue's bright and steady ray, Hath something FELT of Heaven.

He that the Christian's course bath run, And all his foes forgiven, Who measures our life's little span In love to God and love to man, On EARTH has TASTED Heaven.

THE AMERICAN OAK On the mountain side securely growing Without the aid of Mortal hands, Abroad his giant branches throwing, The king of all the forest stands.

Awhile, and then, new features wearing, Armed with the thunder bolts of war, The oak becomes a frigate, bearing The starry flag o'er seas afar.

Come, drink, who loves his country's glory, Unto the broad oak growing free; Fit subject he for song or story-The monarch of both land and sea.

RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA. For several days there have been serious disturbances at Kensington, one of the suburbs of Philadelphia, from a turn-out of weavers. The rioters assembled in large numbers, with fire arms. The Sheriff arranged a civil posse, of two or three hundred men, and proceeded to the Market House, where the rioters were assembled. He was assailed by a shower of stones, and several discharges of fire arms. The posse was disstruck and knocked down. The Sheriff received several blows, and was considerably injured. Several of the rioters were arrested, and the next day, eight of them, on examination, were committed for trial. A body of troops, consisting of nine companies, were finally ordered out, on the requisition, Cadwallader. It was said that the rioters threatenlease of those who had been committed. No acts of violence were committed, and the troops were dismissed, with orders to hold themselves in readiness to muster at an hour's notice. GENERAL COURT.

In the Senate, Jan. 13th-Several of the Senators elected by the two branches in convention, appeared, were qualified, and took their seats.

In the House, a remonstrance was presented against the claims of three members to their seats, from the City of Lowell.

On motion of Mr. Tarbell, it was ordered, that a joint committee be appointed to consider the expediency of reporting resolutions to instruct our Senators and request our Representatives in Congress to favor and vote for refunding Gen. Jackson's fine.

On motion of Mr. Russell of Cambridge, it was ordered, that a committee be appointed to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to repeal an act entitled 'an act to defray the expenses of the Pro- ernor was reported by the committee as follows: bate Courts formed in March 1841, and that the committee consist of one from each county.

DIED.

In Middleborough, 4th inst. Jacob E. Thomas, only son of Capt and I homas, by drowning in the Tispaquin Pond, aged 14 years He left his tather's house at about eight o'clock in the morning to go to some traps he had set on the pond, and as he wished to re turn in season to attend school, he ran across a part of the pond which had previously been open, but a thin ice had formed the night previous and the snow had blown in so as to remove all apprehension from danger, when he suddenly fell through and sunk to the bottom. His parents soon became alarmed as he did not return as usual, and his father went on the pond, and from some traces of footsteps near an opening in the ice was awakened to to the painful apprehension that his son was drowned, and in a place where he could render no immediate aid. The alarm was soon given, the neighbors collected, took a boat on the ice and succeeded in raising the body, but not till life was extinct. The agonized feelings of the afflicted parents may well be imagined. A providence, to them, so sudden and solemn, was almost insup-portable. They loved their son so dearly; their hearts were bound up in him; and they were looking forward with pleasing anticipations to the time when in the decline of years he would be their comfort and support. But now, alas, they behold their son brought

The subject of this notice was a youth of more than ordinary promise. Possessing a retentive memory, a quick perception, a sound judgment, and diligently improving the opportunities he enjoyed for mental improvement, he stood high as a scholar. He was ever dutiful to his parents, kind to his associates, inild and affable in all his deportment, and enjoyed the esteem and good will of all who knew him. But he has in the rose of health and buoyancy of youth, closed his earthly career, and is gone to his final resting place, deeply lamented by a numerous circle of youth with whom he had been united by many endearing associations. May sion business, at Stores Nos. 80 and 82 Wai the grief stricken parents obtain the consolations of the gospel of recently occupied by Baker, Crocker & Co. Jesus Christ and hush their murmurs, knowing that He who gave has taken their son at a time and in a manner which Infinite Wisdom saw best, and that he will watch the sleeping dust till awa-kened on the resurrection morn. And may his young associates admonished by the sudden demise of one of their number, that hey are always haide to die suddenly whether on the hand or on he water. Little did this youth think that he should die so soon and so suddenly. And you may be called away to eternity when you as little expect it.

"Death rides on every passing breeze, He lurks in every flower; Each season has its own disease, Its perils every hour. Then let this world engage no more, Behold the gaping tomb! It bids us seize the present hour,

To morrow death may come.

SIMON GILLETT,

To the land of the free, and the home of the brave. Farewell, my dear wife, tho' it pains me to leave you

Still sighing in bondage, all friendless and poor, In my heart springs a hope, I may live to embrace you, And with you rejoice on freedom's fair shore. Adieu to my country, my friends, and my kindred,

There are friends in the North who are free and highminded, Who will aid my escape tho' the blood-hounds

Tho' dear to my heart, I must bid you adieu; pursue.

Adieu to the scenes which have filled me with horror, Where rapine, and cruelty, and violence reign; Where lov'd ones, united to-day, ere to-morrow Are torn from each other and barter'd for gain;

Where husband, and wife, and parents, and children, With hearts fill'd with anguish exchange their adieu, To toil and to suffer in some distant region To pine and to die amid sorrow and woe.

Adieu to this false and this miscall'd republic, That tramples on rights which the monarchs regard; I am bound to a land which is far less despotic. Where nor color nor caste can of rights be debarr'd.

I avenge not myself, I shall quietly leave thee, For 'vengeance is mine-I'll repay, saith the Lord'; To him you'll account for the wrongs you have done me ture Then seek ve that pardon his grace can afford.

Tho' as crimson thy sin, and of great aggravation, The blood of Messiah can wash it away; O! turn then to him in whom there's salvation, Hear his voice and repent while 'tis yet call'd to-day

LABOR. Heart of the People! Working men! Marrow and nerve of human powers; Who on your sturdy backs sustain Through streaming Time this world of ours; Hold by that title-which proclaims, That ye are undismayed and strong, Accomplishing whatever aims May to the sons of earth belong.

Yet not on ye alone depend These offices, or burthens fall; Labor for some or other end Is Lord and master of us all. The high-born youth from downy bed Must meet the morn with horse and hound, While Industry for daily bread Pursues afresh his wonted round.

With all his pomp of pleasure, he Is but your working comrade now, And shouts and winds his horn, as ye Might whistle by the loom or plough; In vain for him has wealth the use Of warm repose and careless joy-When, as ye labor to produce, He strives, as active to destroy.

But who is this with wasted frame, Sad sign of vigor overwrought? What toil can this new victim claim Pleasure, for Pleasure's sake besought. How men would mock her flaunting shows Her golden promise, if they knew What weary work she is to those Who have no better work to do !

And he who still and silent sits In closed room or shady nook, And seems to nurse his idle wits With folded arms or open book : To things now working in that mind, Your children's children well may owe Blessings that hope has ne'er defined Till from his busy thoughts they flow.

Thus all must work; with heart or hand, For self or others, good or ill; Life is ordained to bear, like land, Some fruit, be fallow as it will: Evil has force itself to sow Where we deny the healthy seed. And all our choice is this,-to grow Pasture and grain or noxious weed.

Then let content possess your hearts, Unenvious of each other's lot .-For those which seem the easiest parts Have travail which he reckon not : And he is bravest, happiest, best, Who, from the task within his span, Earns for himself his evening rest And an increase of good for man.

Jeffrey R. Brackett, Boston,

And hushed is the cry of the swift-darting swallow, That circled the lake in the twilight's dim close.

Gone, gone are the woodbine and sweet scented brier, That bloomed o'er the hillock, and gladdened the

And the vine that uplifted its green pointed spire Hangs drooping and sere on the frost-covered pale.

And hark to the gush of the deep-swelling fountain, That prattled and shone in the light of the moon ; Soon, soon shall its rushing be still on the mountain, And locked up in silence its frolicksome tune.

Then heap up the hearth-stone with dry forest branches, And gather about me, my children, in glee, For cold on the upland the stormy wind launches, And dear is the home of my loved ones to me!

EARTHLY BEAUTY.

There was an angel loved the flowers, Who brought them dew from sainted springs; And came with Heaven's own glowing hours, Upon her white and sparkling wings; Then sat enamor'd all the morn. Lone gazing on her bower of bliss, For oh! she thought Love's self was born In some sweet paradise like this.

And all her fond affections grew In beauty round her flowery bands, That seem'd almost as if they knew Their buds were fed by angel hands. And thus she half forgot the sky, Such feeling warm'd her spirit fair, Till one by one the flowers did die, And left the angel weeping there.

Alas, she mourn'd, who love could place, Or let the heart's affection rest, On forms that have such heavenly grace, Yet fade away when loved the best. Alas, that beauty such as thine, Should die, O Earth, and love deplore ! From thee I wing my way divine, Where beauty blooms forevermore.

YESTERDAY.

"Twas yesterday !" familiar sound ; Heard oft as idle breath; Yet, prophet-like to all around, It spoke of woe and death ! A mourner by the past it stands, In mystic mantle of decay,

Shrouds in the night of years its hands,

And grasps all life away! What, then, is "yesterday?"-a key To wisdom most divine ! It is the hall of Memory, Where Fame's brief trophies shine ! The spiritual home of things,

Where intellect immortal beams, Which lends to thought its holiest wings, Inspires the noblest themes !

A drop that mirrors forth a world, Then mingles with the earth ; A star from Time's vast empire hurled, Slow falling from its birth, A presence with the sacred past,

To warn our spirits of delay; Which saith,-" Proud man, to day thou hast, Use well thy little day."

The Resolutions were thoroughly discussed, and passed almost unanimously, and passed entire with was so amended as to read :- "Resolved, That we, the citizens of the West District, will use all moral and legal measures in our power, to rout the traffic of intoxicating liquors from our District."

As the advocates of the critter were not promptly "on hand" at the commencement of the proceedings, Justin Spear, Esq., assumed the position of a rum advocate, and in an ingenious and happy manner, burlesqued the arguments of the friends of the monster, which excited much amusement, and drew out an interesting and animated debate. He thought (in burlesque) that the Preamble was too severe, and reflected unjustly upon some individual? For once I was alarmed, and endeavored to escape residents of the District; that there were no perapparent in his solitary situation he had, neverwhenever an opportunity occurred for observation, our common humanity, as was stated in the Pre-

Mr. Spear next thought that strong and unjust insinuations were thrown out against the fair sexsome of the women of our district, as being implicated in the rum traffic, and that we, as citizens, should repel such unjust insinuations.

Mr. Fowler contended, in reply, that from his own personal observations, which were consideraand various circumstances and facts which had come to his knowledge, that the facts in the case, Mr. Spear still contended that the accusations of to read :- "Resolved, That we, the citizens, etc," which was carried.

Mr. Spear, in commenting upon the spirit of the Resolutions, in order to illustrate his argument, supposed a case: - "Should (said he) a person from some other place, locate himself in this District, would it be right for the citizens to rise en masse and drive him out?"

Mr. Fowler thought that the person introduced by ----, was a bad fellow; and that it was the express purpose and duty of us citizens, in calling this meeting, to devise means to drive the critter out, forthwith.

Mr. Spear said that he thought moral suasion only should be used with the rum-seller-that the law was a wrong weapon to wield against the rum-

Mr. Fowler thought that the law was made for the suppression of vice and wrong; and that the law-makers undoubtedly intend that it should be enforced; and that he did not see the propriety of making any distinctions with the violations of the law; he was for moral suasion till that failed.

Mr. Spear thought that profane swearing, and the practice of sauntering about the fields on the Sabbath, should suffer the penalty of the law, and he wanted to know why we did not go the length

Mr. Fowler was aware that we had long been asleep, as it were-that we had just awoke, when finding our country deluged in vice, and that intemperance was the worst of all vices-the mother of harlots-we had determined to bend our energies against that first-others would follow in due

Levi B. Pratt thought that the law against profanity and obscenity should be enforced; but that the laws against the non-attendance of church, the walking about on Sunday, and some others of like character, were old relicts of former superstition, and that time and the onward march of public opinion had rendered them nearly obsolete. He was for going the whole figure of the law against crime and real vice in all their forms; but not (if such existed) against the enjoyment and expression of religious and moral opinions.

Capt. Azro B. Stiles thought it best for every one to mind his own business and not meddle with the affairs of others; that he was a friend of temperance-did not like to see a man drunk, and he that gets drunk is a fool, and it is nobody's business to meddle with him. Some people, he thought, were making a great ado about nothing; and he raised his protest against it. He went into an exemination of the United States Constitution, and even out-eclipsed the Great Expounder, Daniel Webster, himself; contending that the license law of this State, is in direct violation of the Constitution, consequently, that it is, and ought to be, null and void. He was also opposed, on the score of justice and benevolence, aside from its unconstitutionality, to prosecutions for violation of the license lawontending that it was unjust and cruel to crush those who sold rum. But in the heat of his zeal in his benevolent opposition to the law he forgot to state that in the summer of 1841, a certain valient gentleman of high military renown, who 'takes his bitters,' entered a complaint against a then widowed Mrs. Keigho, of this District, for selling rum; who was brought before a Justice, on his complaint,

Mr. Pratt thought that it was self-evident that the license law of this Commonwealth is Constitutional, from the very fact that neither the General Government or any of our able statesmen, had raised an objection or doubt of its constitutionality. Likewise, that our State Legislature who enacted, and the Executive who sanctioned the same, must and did know what authority the Constitution delegated to them; and that the objection never is raised but by zealous rum lovers; that in relation to minding one's own business, he thought it was the business of every one to look after the morals of community and to sustain the morals of the land; and that as the traffic in intoxicating liquors and the consequent use of the same, caused more degradation, misery and vice than any other cause, or causes combined it must be the business of all good citizens to use the powers in them vested, to break up the traffic. He asked what would sink a person so low in the mental and physical scale of existence as drunkenness? He thought that it was the business of all who are friends to their species, to assist and befriend such 'fools,' as the gentleman was pleased to call them, and to break up the fool manufactories.

At this stage of the discussion, Mr. Spear withdrew from his assumed position. Major John D. Thayer, who for some time had listened to the debate, now took the floor and spoke in his own defence. He virtually acknowledged that he had sold rum, but denied having sold any since his prosecution. He was in favor of moral suasion and against law. He thought that more water had been sold in milk in this District than he had sold rum and that old Bill Trask, as he called him, was a mean fellow. He thought had it not been for that insignificant, unworthy-of-notice, pumpkin poem of Fowler, he should have signed the pledge before this; that Fowler was a d-d liar. and although he had talked to him, had not used any moral suasion with him, but told him "he had better sign-perhaps he would think differentlymight alter his mind, etc." He thought himself to be a good citizen, a benevolent man, a generous man; that he gave freely to the poor and unfortunate; and that he hated Gov. Trask and pumpkin poem Fowler. He quoted largely from the Bible to sustain wine and strong drink habits; thought the temperance folks were base hypocrites, and that he should drink and give away as much rum as he pleased. He held to giving things their right names; that if a person ask for a fish, he should not be presented with a serpent; or for bread, and be presented with a stone. Mr. Pratt thought that if a person should ask for vinegar, that the gentleman would be likely to give

SUMMARY OF INTELLIGENCE.

A man was lately prosecuted, says the Bunker Hill Aurora, for running toll, and after a hearing of the case, he was fined five dollars, in default of which he was sent to jail,-all for one cent! The case affords food for reflection. For how small a sum of money may a man be incarcerated in jail!

The New York Express says it is now disclosed from the Treasury Department that Jesse Hoytthe successor of Samuel Swartwout in the office of Collector of the Custom in New York--is a defaulter to the amount of two hundred and twenty-six thousand dollars.

MURDER! MURDER!! MURDER!!! At all times will arouse the most stupid. Yet murders area daily perpetrated, which excite very little attention. Is not CONSUMPTION daily murdering thousands of human beings? Does not ASTHMA render life a burthen, and then destroy its victim? Does not much debate. The bill in relation to the rights of beings sink down and die, by attacks of the above and passengers in railroad cars has been voted down in similar affections of the lungs and throat. Fortunately for mankind, JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT has never reconsider this vote. Many petitions have been sands of instances, effected permanent cures after all other means had failed.

For the Quincy Patriot. THE DOCTOR'S STORY. Scene in New York.

In the commercial emporium, unusually wide, There's a street call'd Broadway and well stor'd on each side With wines of all classes, from champaign to port, Manufactured of poisons of every sort.

Broadway leads to death, and of this who can doubt, When swerving and staggering the drunkard turns out From thee hot beds of Satan to find his way home, And falls in the gutter, which happens to some.

From one of these cellars of guilt, sin and shame, Sandy Welch was the keeper, of infamous fame, There happened one night in a drizzly rain, Two dandies emerg'd who were fill'd to the brain.

When out in the dark, at a loss how to go, These two luckless chaps fell into a slough; Being soak'd well within, now soak'd well without, They stagger'd and flounder'd and set up a shout.

But Sandy had got all their coppers away, So left the poor lads in the puddle to stay. " Well Tom, here we are, come give us your hand, There, steady, now steady, I guess I can stand."

"That Sandy's a knave or he'd come to our help, Now he's got all our money, the covetous whelp, For his villanous compound, most falsely call'd wine,

"One," then down goes his foot and then up comes the mire, "Two, three," he keeps stumping, the bell strikes for ture fire; . Four, five, six and seven, my sorrow how late; Eight, nine, ten, eleven, by all that is great ;

" Twelve, thirteen and fourteen, I'll stump out no more For 'tis later than ever I knew it before; And here we are, Tom, and must be, I ween, And yet there's no day-light at all to be seen.

If I ever get out and can once more get home, I'll sign the good pledge and drink no more rum; Then farewell, good Sandy, I'll bid you adieu, You'll filch me no more of my money, I trow."

THE SKATER'S SONG. Away, away, our fires stream bright, Along the frozen river; And their arrowy sparkles of brilliant light, On the forest branches quiver. Away, away, for the stars are forth, And on the pure snows of the valley, In a giddy trance the moonbeams dance-

Come, let us our comrades rally.

Away, away, o'er the sheeted ice, Away, away we go; On our steel-bound feet we move as fleet, As the deer o'er Lapland snow, What though the sharp north winds are out, The skater heeds them not; 'Midst the laugh and shout of the joyous rout, Grey winter is forgot.

"Tis a pleasing sight, the joyous throng, In the light of the reddening flame, While with many a wheel on the ringing steel They wage their riotous game; And though the night air cutteth keen, And the white moon shineth coldly, Their home hath been on the hills I ween, They should breast the strong blast boldly.

Let others choose more gentle sports, By the side of the winter's hearth, Or at the ball, and festival, Seek for their share of mirth; But as for me, away, away, Where the merry skaters be, Where the fresh wind blows, and the smooth ice

ANECDOTES.

There is the place for me.

A philosopher stepped on board of a ferry boat to cross a stream; on the passage he enquired of the fer-Tyman if he understood arithmetic. The man looked astonished. "Arithmetic! No sir, I never heard of it before." The philosopher replied, "I am very sor-ry, for one quarter of your life is gone." A few minutes after, he asked the ferrymen : "Do you know any thing of mathematics?" The boatman smiled and replied "no." "Well then," said the philosopher, "another quarter of your life is gone." A third question was asked the ferryman : "Do you understand astronomy?? "Oh! no, sir, I never heard of such a thing." "Well, my friend, then another quarter of your life is gone." Just at this moment the boat ran on a snag and was sinking, when the ferryman jumped up, pulled off his coat, and asked the philosopher, with great earnestness of manner, "SIR CAN YOU swim?" "No," said the philosopher. "Well, then," said the ferryman, "YOUR WHOLE LIFE IS LOST, for the boat 's going to the bottom.'

That District was the great central mart of the domestic slave trade. To carry on its operations, Congress had erected five prisons at an expense of over one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars from the public money-money that came from the pockets women and children were confined, for no crime whatever but the color of their skin which the Almighty had painted thereon, till a large number could be collected and they were then put on board a ship and carried around to New Orleans or driven like horses and cattle overland to a southern market. And have we of the north, said the speaker, nothing to do in this matter? VILLAGE SKETCHES-No. 6.

THE SHIP IN SIGHT.

Ye have linger'd long-ye have linger'd far-

And its ashes sleep on the cold hearth-stone,

Where the watcher weeps all silent and lone :

And prayers are heard, for they pray for thee

Who hast linger'd thus long, on the deep sea !

'Till hope has gone out as the faded star,

The song will awaken sad voices to night, And hope will relume her fair phonix light, For the fire of the beacon gilds her sails, As the fresh breeze from land a welcome wails; And to-morrow their steps will press the sod, Who have seen this hour as the deck they trod.

And why hast thou moored by Spanish land? Why floated thy flag o'er African sand? Oh! treasures are piled in that bosom of thine, The fabric of Ind, the gems of her mine-The leaf of China and the spicy dower Of the beam that burns, on the tropic shore !

From the ocean cave O bringest thou pearls, Which have slept where the sea-weed tendril curls-To twine 'mid the orange flowers of the bride? Who never will mourn the loved one that died-As he rose with his treasure from the deep, And sunk on the sand in his last-cold deep !

In thy mission's trust hast thou wandered forth For the mantling drapery of the north, That the beauty may glide in ermine white ? Nor dream of the fitful boreal light-Nor think of the cold or the iceberg isle-Which has chilled young hearts that she may smile

Oh! never can we, though we welcome back, Know aught of the storms that have perilled thy track-Or hear by the fire-side the breakers roar, Or guns of distress which echo on shore-But gratitude swells in our hearts for thee, Who blessest the earth, by roving the sea! L. D. C.

A HEART TO LET.

To be let, To be let at a very desirable rate, A snug little house in a healthy state; 'Tis a Bachelor's heart, and the agent is Chance. Affection, the Rent, to be paid in advance. The owner, as yet, has lived in it alone, So the fixtures are not of much value; but soon "Twill be furnished by Cupid himself, if a wife Take a lease for the term of her natural life. Then ladies, dear ladies, pray do not forget An excellent Bachelor's heart 's to be let.

The Tenant will have a few taxes to pay, Love, honor, and (heaviest item) obey. As for the good-will, the subscriber's inclined To have that, if agreeable, settled in kind; Indeed, if he could such a matter arrange, He'd be highly delighted to take in exchange, Provided true title by prudence be shown, Any heart unincumbered, and free as his own So ladies, dear ladies, pray do not forget An excellent Bachelor's heart's to be let.

AN ANSWER.

I called, as per notice, the "snug house" to see, But failed to get in, for the want of a key ; Though by those who well know it, I have been told That the room is too small, and rather too cold; The rent is too high-and what is still more, It, 1 fear, has been rented too often befere; And, had it not been that you always saw fit To serve on each Tenant a notice to quit, One might have remained, and, by patience and skill, Have filled up the blank in a Bachelor's will.

And if there is truth in the current report, You have lately been seen to drop into Court-And now, when in doubt your suit to have pressed, You ask for a bond, and a judgment confessed; And thus, having managed adroitly your part, You would levy at once on some fair Lady's heart, Therefore, I've concluded, for reasons, you'll own, That hearts to be let, better be let alone. Julia.

ANECDOTES.

"Well, my little fellow," said a certain Principal to a juvenile philosopher, whose mamma had been tensing the learned Knight to test the astonishing abilities of her boy,—"what are the properties of heat?" "The chief property of heat is, that it expands bodies, while cold contracts them." "Very good indeed—can you give me a familiar example?" "Yes, sir; in Summer, when it is hot, the day is long; while in Winter, when it is cold, it becomes very short." The learned Knight cents per bottle.

The following original hymn, en has the thermometer stood, at sunrise, at zero; by a young lady of the Society: and a few mornings since the mercury descended to seven degrees below zero. The consequence has been a rise in the price of fuel here, and of many articles of daily consumption; sources of real depression to the suffering poor.

In a business sense, we have gloomy times just now, in Boston. Hundreds of deserving mechanics and laborers have nothing to do; and in good truth, I might say the same with the mercantile and other classes of society. Many are growing poorer, while few are gaining in this world's goods. But I need not expatiate on the apathy of the "times"-they are well known to you and the readers of your well conducted paper. Things look well enough in our great cities, but could the veil be uplifted, that hides misery and poverty from the eye of the casual observer, what scenes would present themselves !- insolvency screened by a gaudy show, and poverty by the unmeaning term of gentility. Still the city is gay and lively. The merry sleigh bells tell how many there are, by hook or crook, who ride in magnificence through the streets with probably not a sous in their pockets or in the world. Twenty-five thousand dollars is but a moderate estimate of the expense for sleigh riding in ses ever delivered in that house. Prayer of Ordithese "diggins" the present winter. The royal speech was read by the Lord Chancellor, and the Ashburton Treaty spoken of in terms of commendation. The Corn Laws are not yet repealed. There is a general depression of trade throughout England but money is plenty. We are soon to have a new steamer added to the Cunard line, called the Hibernia, a splendid vessel of thirteen hundred and fifty tons, a fast sailor, safe, and so rigged that she can sail round the world with her sails alone. On the 20th of January the private Secretary of Sir Robert Peel, (Edmund Drummand, Esq.) was assassinated in the streets of London, which created no little sensation in that city. FROZEN TO DEATH. An inquest was taken on Sunday morning last, at Milton, before William Spear, Esq., Coroner, upon the body of Lucy Talbot of Milton. Verdict of the jury, that she came to her death on the night of the 18th inst., by intoxication and exposure to severe cold, while in company with one John Bowman.

It appeared from the testimony of Bowman, that he had visited the deceased several times previous, and at one time remained with her until two or quested to copy. Dr. Ware testified, that Bowman came to his gate with the deceased about sun rise of Saturday morning, that she was then dead, that he had examined and found some bruises, but nothing to cause him to suppose they were caused by violence, did not think it necessary to make a post mortem examination. Several other witnesses were examined, whose testimony seemed to corroborate the above statements.

Who are the Free? They who have scorned the tyrant and his rod, And bow'd in worship unto none but God; They who have made the conqueror's glory dim-Unchain'd in soul, though manacled in limb-Unwarp'd by prejudice-unaw'd by wrong, Friends to the weak, and fearless of the strong : They who could change not with the changing hour, The self same men in peril and in power; True to the law of right, as warmly prone To grant another's as maintain her own : Foes of oppression, whereso'er it be-

These are the proudly free.

Who are the Great? They who have boldly ventured to explore Unsounded seas, and lands unknown before-Soar'd on the wings of science, wide and far, Measur'd the sun and weig'd each distant star-Pierc'd the dark depths of ocean and of earth, And brought uncounted wonders into birth-Repell'd the pestilence, restrain'd the storm, And given new beauty to the human form-Waken'd the voice of reason, and unfurl'd The page of truthful knowledge to the world : They who have toil'd and studied for mankind-Aroused the slumbering virtues of the mind-Taught us a thousand blessings to create ;-

These are the nobly Great.

Who are the Wise? They who have govern'd with a self-control Each will and baneful passion of the soul-Curb'd the strong impulse of all fierce desires, But kept alive affection's purer fires; They who have passed the labyrinth of life, Without one hour of weakness or of strife; Prepar'd each change of fortune to endure ; Humble though rich, and dignified though poor-Skill'd in the latent movements of the heart-Learn'd in the lore which nature can impart-Teaching that sweet philosophy aloud, Which sees the "silver lining" of the cloud, Looking for good in all beneath the skies :

These are the truly Wise !

Who are the Blest? They who have kept their sympathies awake, And scatter'd joy for more than custom's sake : Steadfast and tender in the hour of need, Gentle in thought-benevolent in deed; Whose looks have power to make dissensions cease-Whose smiles are pleasant, and whose words are peace; They who have lived as harmless as the dove, Teachers of truth, and ministers of love; Love for all moral power-all mental grace--Love for the humblest of the human race--Love for that tranquil joy that virtue brings --Love for the Giver of all goodly things; True followers of that soul exalting plan, Which Christ laid down to bless and govern man. They who can calmly linger at the last, Survey the future and recall the past; And with that hope which triumphs over pain, Feel well assured they have not lived in vain; Then wait in peace their final hour of rest :

SUMMARY OF INTELLIGENCE,

A family, consisting of husband, wife, three sons and five daughters, residing about a mile east of Batavia, (N. Y.,) were all lately poisoned by one of 2,70 the sons, who put an ounce of arsenic into a bag of $1842,36 flour which he brought from the mill the day previous. They all narrowly escaped death. No cause can be assigned except that his family have lately become pious, and united with the church and have made great efforts to induce him to attend church and family worship, but he would always absent himself during family exercises.

By the death of Bishop Griswold, the Eastern Diocese is dissolved. Maine, New Hampshire, 5,00 and Rhode Island, will hereafter constitute three $3232,53 Dioceses. The Episcopal Church in each of these States must now choose a Bishop for itself, or request a neighboring Diocese to exercise episcopal supervision over the same.

Several of the gentlemanly individuals connected with the Phoenix Bank of Charlestown, (Mass.,) which exploded a few months since, have been indicted by the Grand Jury of Middlesex District, for the offences of conspiracy, embezzlement, etc. Let no respect be paid to rank in society, or any other bias be exerted, to thwart justice in this case.

Com. David Porter, celebrated for his naval heroism, and at present the accredited representative of our country at Constantinople, is said to be in very feeble health. Apprehensions are entertained that he will not long survive.

The "Boston Miscellany" has been discontinued. Its subscribers will be supplied with Graham's Magazine in its stead. The latter has an able set of contributors, which is not surpassed by any of its cotemporaries.

We come with hearts of peace and love, Our Pastor here to greet; Both old and young by friendship mov'd, With joy we all do meet.

Our offering's small, but freely given, Accept, with wishes too, That blessings rich from God in heaven, Be shed on yours and you.

In retrospection, let us take A short and hasty view Of by-gone days, of other years, Of joys and sorrows too.

Near thirty years have sped their flight, Since a time honored few, Went out with true, sincere delight, And returned with a pastor new.

That little band except but few, Are sleeping in the dust, We're following on, our days are few, With them we soon shall rest.

Those days are past when Bacchus rul'd, And men were led astray, But thanks to God you've lived to see A new-a happy day.

Good temperance men can now be found, Upheld by reason's sway, Who take the wanderer by the hand, And lead him on his way.

We bid farewell to Alcohol, Farewell to Slavery too, God help our tardy steps to move To help the oppressed too.

We look to you to guide our feet, In wisdom's narrow way; God grant you faith and every grace, To lead to endless day.

When all the unnumbered throng, around The bar of God shall stand, May you and yours with spotless robes, Be found at His right hand.

WINTER PICTURES. Gently, as lillies shed their leaves, When summer days are fair, The feathery snow comes floating down,

Like blossoms through the air; And o'er the earth, like angel's wing; Unfolding white and pure. It shines the shield of power divine, When faith may read it sure,

That He who rules the year, can bring The life, the loveliness of Spring.

And when the bleak and storm-rob'd day, Seems sealed with cares and fears, Oft, through his prison-house of clouds,

The setting sun appears-And to the pensive watcher's gaze, A gleam of glory bears, Which in the noontide summer's prime, He never, never wears;

Like Hope, that pours her fight most clear, When grief's dark clouds are gathering near.

The dark night fill with dread, Still Love may trim the genial fire, The mind's rich banquet spread. And as life's storms of sorrow draw Kind hearts more kindly near, So Nature's cold, stern frowns will make, Dear home more deeply dear-Thus Faith, and Hope, and Love are given,

Even the minds, like wavering hosts,

Javne's Tonic Vermifuge. THIS Vermifuge is perfectly safe, and so pleasant that children will not refuse to take it. It effectually destroys Worms; neutralizes acidity or Sourness of the Stomach, increases appetite, and acts as a general and permanent Tonic, and is therefore exceedngly beneficial in Intermittent and Remittent Fevers, Indigestion, etc. and is almost a certain cure for Fener and Ague, and what is of more importance, it cures it

It is harmless in its effects on the system, and the health of the patient is always improved by its use, even when no Worms are discovered. Numerous certificates of its usefulness have been received, which the proprietor does not consider necessary to publish; yet to give the reader an idea of its vermifuge powers, he will mention a few cases. He gave it to his little nephew, not four years old, and in a few days he discharged upwards of ninety large Worms. He also Josiah Thompson, near Salem, (N. J.) administered this Vermifuge to a child between two and three years old, and says that in a few days she discharged one hundred and twenty seven large Worms. Mr. Joseph A. Lents of the Penn Township Savings Institution, in this city, gave it to one of his child and says that after the sixth dose it brought away about fifty Worms at once, five and six inches long

Mr. Ferdinand Woodruff used two bottles of this Vermifuge for Dyspeps a, and in the course of two weeks discharged upwards of thirty pieces of Taps Worm, and was thereby perfectly cured. CALEB GILL, JR. For sale by Quincy, Feb. 18.

FIRE AND LOSS OF LIFE IN CINCINNATI.-About four o'clock on the morning of the 25th ult., an extensive pork packing establishment in Cincinnati. (Ohio,) was discovered to be on fire. It was filled with pork and lard. The building was a hundred feet front by sixty feet deep. A short time after, an explosion took place, which threw off the roof, and scattered the walls in every direction. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by the generation of gas from the burning meat. The destruction of the house involved the loss of a number men, and instantly killing some and wounding a great number more. Such was the consternation created by the shock of the explosion-"We know no such thing," I replied; Miss spectators recovered from the panic. They are finding, that by having too many trades, they come very near to verifying the old adage of "excelling in none." The Committee are not led to make this remark because they believe that any teacher in this town has been negligent of his charge in instructing the past year on account of having had other labour upon his hands, but simply upon a general principle, and as an encouragement to those who wish to educate themselves for the profession of teaching.

2. The pupils must understand that if they have a good school, they themselves contribute in no small degree to make it such. Rarely has there ever been a poor school where the scholars were punctual and constant attendants, diligent and duly subordinate. Unless this is the case, the labours of the best teacher will be comparatively of little service. A single hour spent in a school man, and one Constable. would often do more to replace the teacher in the confidence of a disaffected parent than all other means or arguments combined. The Committee are far from believing that teachers are never in the wrong. On the contrary, they know they often are. And not unfrequently a change is not only desirable but indispensable; still, parents, often from local or personal considerations, or prejudices unknown to themselves, think a change is necessary when in reality, if it were to take place, it would not be for the better but for the worse.

It is not the wish of the Committee to make comparisons between the different Schools; much less do they wish to say any thing which shall tend to the discredit of any particular teacher or school; neither would they conceal any deficiencies.

The Schools in the Centre, South and Point Districts have suffered a temporary suspension, or what was equivalent to it, the past year by the repairs and alterations to which their school-houses have been subjected. The Committee feel that this suspension, or crowding the schools into a room not sufficiently large for their accommodation was a serious drawback to the scholars, but this is in no respect to be imputed to any neglect or disqualification of these teachers.

In the Centre District there are three schools in convenient and pleasant rooms. Two of them are taught by ladies and the other by a gentleman. They are under good regulations and doing well. We have taken much pleasure in visiting and examing these Schools. The teachers are competent and diligent. A writing school has been commenced in this District, separate from the other schools, and the Committee are unanimously of the opinion that the effect has been salutary. The improvement in this useful and ornamental branch of comb 7, Samuel Curtis 5. Reading and spelling a portion of the time in one school and a portion in the other seemed calculated to render them negligent and careless in both. It would be well if writing could always be taught by a writing master, but he should confine his labours to that branch, or else he should have the whole charge of the school.

In the South District the school has also been divided and there are, including the Primary, three schools in separate and convenient apartments. The instructor, Mr. Seaver, as well as those who have had the superintendence of the alterations made in the School-house, has spent much time and been at no inconsiderable trouble in planning and arranging the various rooms and their apparatus. The Committee think the rooms are well prepared and arranged for study, and believe all these schools to be in a good stage of progress.

There are those whom he cannot fail to influence-those who will rejoice with him in prosperity,---sorrow with him in adversity, and for him after death. He must live and die not for himself alone. Much more is this true, continued the Preacher, with those who have filled important stations in public, and on whose lives and characters all eyes around have been fixed. Mr. Whitney had occupied a station as a Minister of Christ, which for nearly half a century had been exposed to the sternest scrutiny .-- and watched but to bring him approval and admiration. Mr. Lunt set forth some of the leading elements in the character and mind of his departed colleague, and entered into a brief history of his life. Moses Whitney, a progenitor of his family, beyond whom nothing is known, lived at Littleton and died there in 1778 at an advanced age. He had three sons, one of whom, Aaron was born at Littleton in 1714; graduated at Cambridge in 1737; was ordained the first Pastor of the Church of Christ in Petersham in 1738, where he died on the 8th of September 1779, in the 66th year of his age and 41st of his

His second son and second child, Peter Whitney, was born at Petersham, 15th Sept., 1744: was graduated at Cambridge in 1762: was ordained paster of the First Church in Northboro', Nov. 4th, 1767, and died there, suddenly, Feb. 29th, 1816, in the 72d year of his age and in the 49th of his ministry. He preached the Sabbath before his death, which was on Thursday afternoon, when being in his ordinary health and baying taken his dinner as usual, he shortly after fell and expired in a few moments, as he was passing from his wood-shed into his

Rev. Peter Whitney, the Pastor of Quincy, hissecond son and second child among eleven children, was born at Northboro', 19th January, 1770. He studied with his father, and was entered at Harvard University, in July, 1787, having gone seldom before from the quiet retirement of his native town. The vacations he spent at home, except the winter vacation of his senior year, when he taught a school at Charlestown. He was graduated in 1791; and engaged immediately as assistant Preceptor in the Derby Academy, at Hingham, an institution standing among the first of the kind in our land. Here be remained until '95 or '96, pursuing his theological studies under the direction of Rev. Henry Ware, senior, D. D., then minister at Hingham, and since Professor in Harvard University.

Mr. Whitney was afterwards for more than thirty years a member of the Board of Trusices in that institution, and for many years their President, until as the infirmities of age began to approach he resigned his seat, when a vote of thanks was passed by his associates, expressive of the grateful sease quest years his literary acquisitions procured for im an appointment to deliver the annual oration before the first literary society in the country, the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and also an appointment to the office of Tutor in Harvard University, both of which honors he saw fit to decline. While residing at Hingham, Mr. Whitney preached in various places; and having received a unanimous call was ordained colleague pastor with Rev. Anthony Wibird over the First Congregational Society in this town, Feb. 5th, 1800, over which he continued to have the sole charge until 1835, when Rev Mr Lunt was associated with him. He preached his last sermon in the church, Sept. 19th, 1841, in the forenoon, and last took part in the devotional exercises at his church, Oct. 24th, 1842, in the afternoon.

But we forbear further comments on the discourse, which was closed with appropriate and feeling addresses to the bereaved family and relatives of the deceased, to the clergy, to the church and congregation, and to the large assembly who were present. The concluding prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Pierce, the venerable pastor of Brookline, a cotemporary and early friend of Mr. Whitney, whose words are always those of wisdom, and who seemed fitly chosen for the office he so well discharged. The following funeral ode by Watts, numbered 660, was then sung by the choir, and seldom have we heard any thing better sung.

Unveil thy bosom, faithful tomb; Take this new treasure to thy trust, And give these sacred relics room. To seek a slumber in the dust.

Nor pain, nor grief, nor anxious fear, Invade thy bounds; no mortal woes Can reach the peaceful sleeper here, And angels watch the soft repose.

So Jesus slept; God's dying Son Passed through the grave, and blessed the bed; Rest here, dear saint, till from this throne The morning break, and pierce the shade.

Break from his throne, illustrious morn; Attend, O earth, his sovereign word; Restore thy trust, a glorious form: It must ascend to meet the Lord.

The services were closed by the apostolic benediction from Rev. Dr. Parkman. A slow and solemn dirge was then breathed from the organ, while opportunity was given and improved by all who desired to pass by the pulpit in order, and look the Petition of AARON PRESCOTT, Stoddard, had, on the day of filing his petition for a desired to pass by the pulpit in order, and look the estate of for the last time upon the venerable countenance of one who in life was so generally loved and in death sincerely mourned.

Quincy, Jan. 1.

Cast thy bread upon the waters-Let its restless surges bear Where they may, thy free donation; Earth hath suffering every where.

'Tis alike to thee, whoever Shares the blessings thou hast given ; Thou hast done as was commanded-Trust it to the care of Heaven.

As the stewards of Jehovah, Should we every good receive; Thus might we, in lives of sadness, Joy and sunshine interweave.

Gratitude is not our portion :-Be all praise ascribed to him, Who for us has drained the chalice, Filled with anguish to the brim.

It is ours with him to suffer, To endure reproach and shame, To rejoice that we are worthy To be hated for His name.

Earthly good, though showered upon us, Is but to be freely given ; Lo! our treasure is protected Safe from all decay in heaven.

When the destitute are calling For the succor we can give, Shall we coldly pause, and ponder, Ask them, " By what means they live?"

Nay, our Savior's life doth teach us How to treat the child of want :-Mark how sparing He of censure ! How devoid of ciuel taunt !

Lo! how gentle all His accents To the suffering and the poor Well He knew their stricken spirits Stern reproach could ill endure.

As an equal, as a brother, He partook their scanty store ; In return He gave them tiches Still increasing evermore.

E'en the vilest shared His blessing ;-Shall we, then, presume to say, Who is or is not deserving? Or give freely while we may.

Lo! the night of death is hastening, Soon its shades round us will fall : Let us then, while life endureth, Heed and answer every call.

What we do must be done quickly-Time waits not a mortal's will; "Tis enough if, in our measure, We God's law of love fulfil.

Let us labor for the helpless, Plead for those who cannot speak, Render love for hate and scorning, Bear the failings of the weak.

Not alone from hoarded treasures Should we aid and succor bring : For the poorest, in his bosom. May have love's o'erflowing spring.

Where's the heart acquaint with sorrow, But has known the soothing power Shed by sympathizing spirits O'er a dark life's darkest hour?

Are we destitute of riches? Let us bring love's priceless gift, Pour the treasure wheresoever Aching hearts the sad eye lift.

He who hath withholden from us Earthly store, the deed will bless, Will himself be all things to us, In our day of wretchedness.

Let us, then, whate'er He giveth, Freely to the suffering cast; He who bid us give will never Leave us desolate at last.

ANECDOTES.

During the musical festivals at Hamburg, a musician from another city boarded in a private family where an uncommon good table was kept. One day, when all the family were assembled for dinner, the stranger was absent. The housemaid was sent to call him, she found him occupied at his toilet being at that moment engaged in using his tooth-brush. "Well, is he coming? said the lady of the house, as the servant returned, "Yes. ma'am directly," was the reply he's just sharpening his teeth."

" I'll send you down for six months this time," said the Recorder to a covey whose term of thirty days in the Workhouse had just expired. "Well, then, you ain't no whig and I is," said the prisoner. "Pray what has whiggery or Tylerism to do with your commitment?" said the Recorder. "Why," said he, "we whigs are opposed to the second term principle and yet you Tyler men are in favor of it." Recorder thought the application of the principle too indefinite in this instance, and so sent the prisoner

Bronchitis.

THIS disease of the THROAT and LUNGS, which L is annually sweeping thousands upon thousands to a premature grave, under the mistaken name of Consumption, is always cured by JAYNE'S EXPEC-TORANT. The symptoms of the disease are Cough, Soreness of the Lungs or Throat, Hoarseness, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, Hectic Fever, Spitting up of Phlegm, or matter, and sometimes Blood. It is an Inflammation of the fine skin which lines the inside of the whole of the wind tubes, or air vessels, which runs through every part of the Lungs. This Expectorant immediately suppresses the Cough, Pain, Inflammation, Fever and Difficulty of Breathing, and produces a free and easy expectoration, and a cure is soon effected. Prepared only by Dr. D. Jayne, 20 South Third Street. Price $1.

On the lest day of the late session of Congress, one of the members of the House handed an album to Hon. John Quincy Adams, from a lady, with a request that he would favor her with his autograph signature, with an additional line or two of his writing. The head of the page on which he was requested to place his name was embellished with an engraved vignette, representing a man weeping by the side of a grave-stone Mr. Adams took his pen, and, amid the noise and confusion of the House, wrote beneath the picture the Afflicted mourner! streams thy tear Because thy country's gallant band, Columbia's chieftains gathered here, No more shall rule thy native land? Cease to lament their hapless doom ; Engrave their deeds upon that stone ? Inscribe their glory on the tomb, And leave them with it all alone !

IMPROMPTU.

A HUGE PAW.

Stanzas to the memory of a Blacksmith With the nerves of a Sampson, the Son of the Sledge,

By the anvil his livelihood got; With the skill of old Vulcan could temper an edge, And " strike when his Iron was hot."

With the sons of St. Crispin no kindred he claimed, With "the last" he had nothing to do; He handled no brad awl, but yet in his time Had made many an excellent Shoe.

He blew up no coals of sedition, but still His bellows were always in biast : And I do maintain it, deny it who will, He had but one Vice to the last.

No actor was he, or concerned with the stage, Had no audience to shout or applaud; Yet oft in his shop, like a crowd in a rage, The voice of a hissing was heard.

The steeling of Axes was part of his cares, Yet in thieving he never was found; And, altho' be was constantly running on bars, No vessel he e'er ran aground.

Now, alas and alack! what more shall I say Of old Vulcan's unfoftunate son? The Priest and the Sexton have borne him away, And the sound of his hammer is gone.

From the Plymouth Memorial. THERE REMAINETH A REST. No foe invades that peaceful realm Nor sorrow, sighing, pain, or care; But love, pure love, with glowing flame, Burns with eternal fervor there.

No wounded heart shall swell with rage, Ner false report find credent ear; For each with kindest confidence Excludes the shadow of a fear

The verdant hills, and flow'ry vale. Re-echo back a ceaseless song; While tow'ring rocks and wand'ring streams, The angelic melody prolong.

'Tis sweeter far than fairy land, Or famed Elysium's balmy shore ; Here God prepares his people's rest, And weary pilgrims roam no more.

ON A QUIET CONSCIENCE.

Close thine eyes and sleep secure ; Thy soul is safe, thy body sure: He that guards thee, he that keeps, Never slumbers, never sleeps. A quiet conscience in the breast Has only peace, has only rest: The music and the mirth of kings Are out of tune, unless she sings :

Then close thine eyes in peace, and sleep secure; No sleep so sweet as thine, no rest so sure.

ANECDOTES.

A hard cuctomer in a country village, was taken dangerously ill, and requested that the minister might visit him. The parson went, prayed with him, asked him if he was penitent, and if he ever prayed for himself. He was answered in the affirmative. "Then." said the minister, "all you want is sufficient faith, and the doors of salvation will be opened to you." "Oh." veplied the sick one, "I think I have got faith enough, such as it is - but its darn'd poor trash, I tell ye!"

A merchant bustling about the place, collecting, or trying to collect, bills for some heavy payments during the week, pitched rather uncerimoniously, though accidentally, into a country chap, gazing ad libitum at the city novelties; who, thereupon, smartly sung out, "I say, mister, try that again, and I'll kick you into the middle of next week?" "Will you friend," replied the anxious merchant, "egad only put me through this week and I'm a made man; that's just rate by

Ye Tailors ! of ancient and noble renown, Who clothe all the people in country and town; Remember that Adam, your father and head, Though the lord of the world, was a tailor by trade.

Ye all are contented, and happy, and free.

Ye Masons! who work in stone, mortar and brick, And lay the foundation deep, solid and thick, Though hard be your labor, yet lasting your frame; Both Egypt and China your wonders proclaim.

Ye Smiths! who forge tools for all trades here below, You have nothing to fear while you shite and you blow, All things you may conquer, so happy your lot, If you're careful to strike while the iron is hot.

Ye Shoemakers! nobly from ages long past, Have defended your rights with your awl and your last; And Coblers, all merry, not only stop holes, But work night and day for the good of their soles.

Ye Cabinet Makers! brave hewers of wood, As you work for the ladies, your work must be good And Joiners and Carpenters, far off and near, Stick close to your trades and you're nothing to fear.

Ye Hatters! who often with hands not very fair, Fix a hat on a block for a blockhead to wear; Though Charity covers a sin now and then, You cover the head and the sins of all men.

Ye Coach Makers! must not by tax be controlled, But ship off your coaches and fetch us home gold; The roll of your coach made Copernicus reel, And fancy the world turned round like a wheel.

Ye Carders and Spinners and Weavers attend, Stick close to your loom, your wheels and your card, is on the first envelope. And you never need fear of the times being hard.

Ye Printers! who give us our learning and news, And impartially print for Turks, Christians and Jews, Let your favorite toast ever sound in the streets-" The Freedom of Press and a Volume in Sheets."

Ye Coopers! who rattle with driver and adz, And lecture each day upon hoops and on heads; The famous old ballad, of "Love in a Tub," You may sing to the tune of your rub a dub dub.

Ye Ship Builders, Riggers and Makers of Sails! Already the same of your labor prevails, And still you shall see o'er the proud swelling tide, The ships of nation triumphantly ride.

Each Tradesman turn out with his tools in his hand, To cherish the Arts and keep Peace through the land; Each 'Prentice and Journeyman join in the song, And let the brisk chorus go bounding along !

TO EMILY.

BY HON. JOHN Q. ADAMS. " Up rose the sun-and up rose Emily."

Five hundred years have passed away, Since Chaucer in that single line, Pourtray'd a damsel of his day, Whose soul was pure and fair as thine.

And thou art rising like the sun, And be thy destiny the same, With him a cloudless race to ran, And close in still serener flame!

ANECDOTES

"I say, Sambo," said a lusty negro, " have you seen the great comic which peoples talk about so much?"
"Yes, Pompey, I seed it wid my naked eye as plain as I see your nose dis moment." "Well, Sambo, can you lighten dis child as to the silosophy of this erenomena?" "Why, you see," said Pompey, drawing himself up with a very knowing air, "de skientific folks pretend it is some wandering "sentric orb which goes skylarking about on its own book rewolwing just where it is a mind to same as Dinah does on Massa Moody's hill. But my 'pinion is, 'tis nothing more than Madame Wenus with a bussel on!"

" Martha, does thee love me?" asked a quaker youth of one at whose shrine his heart's holiest feelings had been offered up. "Why, Seth," answered she, "we are commanded to love one another, are, we not?" "Ay, Martha; but does thee regard me with that feeling the world calls love?" "I hardly know what to tell thee, Seth. I have greatly feared that my heart was an erring one-I have tried to bestow my love on all; but I may have sometimes thought, perhaps, that thee was getting rather more than thy share."

A Monk wishing to show his learning, preached on that passage of the gospel where it is said that the servants of the high priest, during the trial of our Savior, warmed themselves by the fire. "My brethren," said the preacher, " ye are to notice that the Evangelist is not content to mention this circumstance as an historian only; "they warmed themselves;" but like a philosopher, he gives a reason for it, "because they

Franklin, when he was Ambassador to France, being at a meeting of a literary society and not well understanding the French when declaimed, determined to applaud when he saw a lady of his acquaintance express satisfaction. When they had ceased, a little child, who understood the French, said to him : "But grandpapa, you always applaud the loudest when they are praising you." The good man laughed heartily and explained the matter.

A gentleman in Ireland having built a large house, was at a loss what to do with the rubbish. His steward friends and customers, that she has just received friends and customers, that she has just received "And what," said the gentleman, smiling, "shall I do with the earth, that is dug out of the pit?" The steward with great gravity said, "have the pit large enough to hold all.

A celebrated preacher having remarked in a sermon, that every thing made by God was perfect, "What think you of me?" said a deformed man in a pew beneath, who arose from his seat, and pointed at his own back. "Think of you?" reiterated the preacher, " why, that you are the most perfect hunch-back my eyes ever beheld."

"It is impossible," said a skeptic, "that that which is immaterial should be united with that which is is immaterial should be united with that which is material. Hence mind and matter cannot be joined together."
